Respected Sir

As per our telephonic talk. I have thought of the below mentioned topics which i feel could be helpful, also it would be great if you could mail me with the details of what you would expect in the content and most importantly output of the workshop.

What I have thought of, is as under:

- 2. Emerging classroom teaching techniques (with special reference to JIGSAW Classroom, https://www.jigsaw.org)
- Various innovative techniques used in New Zealand education system and what we can adopt and learn from it. (My personal experiences)
- Use of technology in active class control and class engagement (practical demonstrations through various apps, soft wares, simulation games and social media platforms.)
- Developing various games, activities and working models to make learning fun in their respective subjects. (I have developed a few as well as adapted a few activities and working models around 23 I have which I am using regularly in class).

Please guide me wherever you feel

Waiting for your feedback

1. School Profile – general information about the school

Background information

The school has 10-years of experience in working with special educational needs (SEN) children in integrated classes. According to the regulations by Ministry for Education, an integrated class must contain SEN children numbering from three to five. However, it is possible that only two SEN children join an integrated class, provided that they suffer from multiple disabilities. For example, a child is autistic and partially sighted or suffers from cerebral palsy and hearing disorder.

The whole school population comprises 507 children, both boys and girls, 23 (approximately 5%) of which have a statutory statement. At the primary level in classes from 1 to 6 children are between the ages from 7 to 13 or 14. At the 'gimnazjum level' in classes from 1 to 3 children are between the ages from 14 to 16.

Types of disabilities in the school

- ADHD Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder
- Autism
- · · Mild and medium cerebral palsy
- Physical disability
- Hearing disability
- Blindness

The school curriculum

SEN children follow the same curriculum as the ones who have no SEN, if their learning capabilities meet the required standards or are slightly below average. If however, a child's learning difficulties makes it impossible for him or her to follow the same curriculum as the rest of the class then he or she follows an individual curriculum which is adequate to his or her needs.

The role of the support teacher

- makes the school syllabus compatible to the capabilities of the special educational needs child
- sets individual learning targets for each child
- makes the final decision regarding the final grades the child receives
- corresponds with the child's parents
- if the child receives no support at home, tries to compensate for this
- personally assists special educational needs children during everyday classes
